Stay warm and stylish this season with a scarf project that takes less than an hour to sew, but looks like it took a long time to knit. Choose a chunky or metallic sweater-knit fabric to complete the effect. Once you see how it works, you can adjust the scarf's dimensions to make super-long, thick, or skinny ones to suit your style.

MATERIALS

- Approximately 1 yard of sweater-knit fabric
- Matching thread
- Hand-sewing needle

STEPS

Step One

Cut one 31"-wide and 41"-long piece of sweater-knit fabric with the grain running along the 31"-wide edge. Fold the piece in half with the longer edges aligned and right sides together. Sew the long edges together with a ½"-wide seam allowance.

Step Two

Turn the scarf right side out. Then, turn one end wrong side out and pull it down to align with the other end.

Step Three

Pin the scarf together with the short ends aligned. Sew the short ends together using a ½"-wide seam allowance, leaving a 4"-wide opening for turning.

Step Four

Turn the scarf right side out through the opening. Hand sew the opening shut.
